Urgent Medical Update for Catheter Users

Now Medicare, the Veterans Administration and the FDA all agree.
Catheters should NOT be re-sterilized and reused.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) states that a catheter is a single-use medical device and should not be reused or re-sterilized for reuse. All sterile catheter packages state single-use only.

Doctor Michael J. Kussman, MS, MACP of the Veterans Health Administration has stated that "Catheters identified as single-use devices should Not be reused in any setting."

And now Medicare agrees. Effective Immediately, new Medicare reimbursement rules state for each episode of covered catheterization, now Medicare will cover one catheter and an individual packet of lubricant. This new Medicare ruling ends the need to reuse catheters ever again.

The washing and reuse of catheters may increase the risk of urinary tract infections for patients who were only qualified to get Medicare reimbursement for 4 catheters per month.

Now, each time a patient catheterizes, up to 6 times a day, they are free to use a new sterile catheter and then throw the used catheter away. No more reusing catheters. No more boiling, washing and drying used, worn out catheters. No more risking urinary tract infections.
